

Stranded GXL Automotive Primary Hook Up Wire from Remington Industries is ideal for higher temperature, more rugged circuit wiring applications that specify SAE J1128 requirements, such as automotive, electric motor, and generator applications. The multi conductor wire is made from bare copper that offers high quality performance for most electrical applications. Additionally, the XLPE insulation protects the wire against abrasion, chemicals, fuels, oils, and solvents, while also remaining flexible enough to fit wherever it might be needed. This hook up wire is available in several wire gauges (from 14 to 18 AWG) to meet your specific requirements. It is also available in a variety of bold colors (see below) to allow for easy circuit identification, as well as numerous spool sizes (see below) for your convenience.
